Hit-Skip Driver Is Fined
After Crash At Columbiana

State Patrolmen see Collision, Motorist Drives Away;
He Pays Total of $35 and Costs

It's best to avoid accidents all together, but if one does happen, it's a good idea to stick around awhile and straighten things up—particularly when the state patrol is handy.

A car driven by Everett Lovejoy, 27, of Columbiana, hit a car driven by Mrs. Hettie Green, 60, of Columbiana, on Route 14, one and one-half miles west of Columbiana at 1:50 p. m. Friday.

Patrolmen See Accident
State Patrolmen Kenneth Overholt and Paul Barnes, in their patrol car, witnessed the accident and saw Lovejoy fail to stop. The officers turned their own car about, chased and caught the erring motorist.

Arrested on charges of reckless driving and "hit-skip", Lovejoy was fined $10 and costs and $25 and costs, respectively, when arraigned before Mayor Arthur Myers in Columbiana.

The state patrol reported that Lovejoy "cut in" on Mrs. Green's car in passing it. No one was injured.

Seven other motorists were arrested on various charges yesterday by Salem state highway patrolmen.

Larry George, 21, of Shaker Heights, charged with failure to observe a stop sign as the result of an accident at the intersection of Routes 14 and 224 yesterday morning, was fined $5 and costs at Meersfield.

Richard Noel R. D. 2, Columbiana, reckless driving, fined $10 and costs by Mayor Norman Phillips.

Samuel L. Rubin of Pittsburgh, reckless driving, fined $10 and costs at Columbiana.

George Koch of New Waterford.

ALLIANCE PROBES WOMAN'S DEATH

Knudsen Calls On U. S. Industry To Speed Production

"Speed and More Speed" In Filling Defense Orders
Demanded by Co-ordinator As "Best Insurance Against War"

(By The Associated Press.)

DETROIT, Dec. 7.—Accelerated production of defense materials as insurance against American involvement in war is being asked of the nation's industrialists by National Defense Coordinator William S. Knudsen.

Before a group of Detroit manufacturers, among them the presidents of three automotive companies and the production chief of another, Knudsen last night urged "speed and more speed" in filling defense orders.

"I'm no worrier," he told a dinner of the Adcraft club of Detroit, "but I feel that if we can improve our setup, quantity and delivery of defense items, it would be the best insurance to keep us out of war."

"The more prepared we are, the less liable to attack. It is our duty to show the world that we are all that we claim we are."

His listeners included M. M. Gilman, president of the Packard Motor Car Co.; K. T. Keller, president of Chrysler Corp.; C. E. Wilson, acting president of General Motors Corp.; and Charles E. Sorenson, Ford Motor Co. production chief.

All four companies are engaged in production of defense materials.

Knudsen called upon firms having defense contracts to make use of sub-contractors to ease the strain imposed upon the machine tool industry and so that idle space and equipment could be utilized.

He said that when he assumed the job of defense production chief six months ago, "certain difficulties" confronted the commission, "but today there are none."

"The defense program has been fully laid out and apportioned to manufacturers," he said. "The main thought has been to get the execution of the job into responsible hands and that we have."

Approximately $10,000,000,000 in defense orders have been apportioned, he continued, but he warned that "this program is going to multiply. The hardest job lies ahead."

"The commission is constantly planning and plotting to see how much more we could do if we have to do it," he said, adding that American industry "is equal to any task imposed upon it."

"Nobody is ever quite satisfied with the way things are going and I think in that lies the future of our country," he said.

Command; Bastico To Take His Place

ROME, Dec. 7.—Count Cesare Maria de Vecchi di Val Cislmon one of the original big four of Italian Fascism with Benito Mussolini, resigned his command in the Dodecanese islands today in the second sensational retirement from Italy's war scene.

General Ettore Bastico, 64-year-old commander of the motorized army of the Po, and veteran of the Italian blackshirts, was chosen by Mussolini to replace the 66-year-old count, who had been civil and military governor of the Aegean islands since November, 1936.

(The Dodecanese, lying between Turkey and Greece, are of considerable strategic importance, especially in the current Italian conflict with Greece.)

J-C's Not Seeking
Clothes for Needy

The Junior Chamber of Commerce, while soliciting funds to aid in the distribution of Christmas baskets to needy families this Christmas, is not seeking clothing or other articles for indigents.

The Salem Red Cross chapter, which has always handled this phase of relief work commendably, is continuing to do so and it is not the intention of the Junior Chamber to take over or duplicate any Red Cross activities.

The Red Cross has turned over to the Jaycees the names of worthy needy families for use by the Junior Chamber in the organization's distribution of Christmas baskets.

Prospective Draftees Are Warned to Study Questionnaires

At least 20 per cent of the questionnaires received to date by the Salem district draft board have been returned to the registrants due to failure on the part of the prospective draftees to answer questions properly, or to use pen and ink in writing or to have the questionnaires properly notarized.

This was disclosed today by Clerk G. M. Griffith who admonished the registrants to read and study their questionnaires thoroughly.

"The filing of the questionnaires is an important operation and the burden rests with the registrants, not the draft board," the clerk said. Griffith explained that some of the questionnaires returned to them were made out in pencil, some applicable questions went unanswered and in a couple of instances the notary public signed his or her name in pencil instead of using ink.

The Salem draft board has issued a total of 738 questionnaires to date and 100 men have been placed in Class 1-A which means that they are not deferred and are fit for military service. Physical examinations, however, are to be given.

He was treated by a doctor and then removed to his home. State patrolmen said Nutter's car was practically demolished when it hit the rear of the truck which was operated by Ralph Morgan, 21, of Chagrin Falls. The truck driver was reported to have been slowing down at the time.

CRAZY YANKEES

There may be merit in a suggestion appearing in the New Yorker magazine that this country should develop a technique of menace. The idea has a certain appeal. For instance, President Roosevelt might consult with statesmen from other countries in Death Valley, and Uncle Sam could shave off his whiskers and act more like Flash Gordon. Continuing in the same direction, a more ominous America might beat practitioners of frightfulness and fear at their own game by making menacing gestures at helpless people, say the residents of the Sandwich Islands—just to give European land-grabbers something to think about.

But, on the whole, the crazy Yankees would be smart not to chuck their stock-in-trade, which is their native craziness. Psychologically, it must be a terrific sock in the eye for the iron-jawed, beetle-browed, full-necked, trumpet-voiced men of destiny in the old world to realize that between them and realization of their dreams stands a skinny old man who looks as though he'd rather burst out laughing than anything else, who speaks mildly in a voice that issues from his nose as often as not, who is at home in such outlandish surroundings as Potomac, Tuscarawas, Philadelphia, Chillicothe, Kalamazoo, Punksutawney, Shenandoah, Alliquippa, Shelbygan and Duck Falls, and carries no weapon but a plug of squirtin' tobacco.

Fundamentally, the secret of inspiring awe is to create a feeling of mystery. Americans can't understand European ranting and raving; presumably, Europeans can. Therefore, it seems logical to expect they would be scared half to death by a soft voiced "When you say that, partner, smile—or start reaching."

APOLOGY

An Ohioan doesn't find it easy to look at the 1940 census figure for his state without feeling hot rage smoldering in his breast. Why has this state gained only 4 percent population for the first time in almost 150 years? Its normal increase always has been proportionately greater.

Officially, there now are 5,907,612 Ohioans; in the 1930 census there were 6,646,697. That is an increase of less than 4 percent, compared with increases between previous nose-countings ranging from 13.2 percent between 1900 and 1910 to 408.7 percent between 1800 and 1810. The increase from 1920 to 1930 was 15.4 percent.

Statistics describe only the result, not the cause. The cause is indescribable. It is something no one can fathom. There is no reason why Ohio shouldn't have gone right on increasing its population at boom rates ad infinitum—none, that is, except the fact the population of the United States, which used to increase an average of 28 percent a year, climbed ahead only 7 percent this year.

But since all Ohioans are committed firmly to the proposition their state is best of the 48 in all respects, except weather, it is scant comfort to know they are no worse than average. They feel they owe someone an apology for not being better than average. It's the Ohio spirit. If it's at all possible, the ground will be made up between now and 1950. A 10 percent increase in population would give the state 7,598,373 inhabitants as the world turned into the home stretch of the 20th century.

STANDOFF

Plainly, the British house of commons is in no mood to wave olive branches. The half dozen members who attempted a peace move have been chastised soundly by 341 votes on the other side.

Nevertheless, they have tackled a problem that sooner or later will have to be tackled by the government—the problem of how to end the war. There are four possibilities: Outright British victory, outright German victory, a British peace move, or a German peace move.

German victory is not in sight, nor is British victory in sight. A British peace move has been squelched, and a German peace move is impossible. The result is a standoff, for an obvious reason. The military issue has not been resolved yet.

The World War ended when responsible officials in Germany no longer could imagine victory. Rather than continue to the point of complete exhaustion, they surrendered. Twenty years later Germany was in position to renew its bid for supremacy.

It is unlikely the new war will bring clean-cut victory. It cannot end, however, until one side or the other is unable to imagine a clean-cut victory. When that will happen no one possibly can know, not even the officials with the most information.

GOODWILL

Building goodwill isn't a job for men with limited imagination. It calls for unusual ability to see opportunities and use them.

President Roosevelt's order to make an army bomber available to fly the ailing wife of Carlos Davila, former president of Chile, home to her native country is a gesture of international goodwill that should have far-reaching effect. While it does not seem to have been the President's idea in the first place, his own brain, keenly sensitive to opportunities for saying and doing the right thing in the right circumstances, couldn't have conceived a better plan for letting South America know how North America feels. That is the purpose of goodwill gestures, which are substantially the same whether made by nations or individuals.

Unless, through miracle, peace happens in the meantime, coming spring will see war break into new fury. It isn't a pleasant thought for persons who look upon the vernal season as love's right of way.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, December 8

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a very propitious and pleasant one, with the promise of lively and progressive events in the conventional affairs of the day, social, romantic and philanthropic. There may be particular impetus to intellectual forces, with some outstanding or remarkable discovery, invention or flash of genius or illumination, and this may have far reaching effect of deep or spiritual significance. Group work of a humanitarian nature thrives.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a lively and eventful year, with progress and pleasure as well. The intellect will be stimulated into strange fields of discovery or creative attainment in peculiar avenues of expression, amounting to illumination or inspiration of much significance.

A child born on this day will have some rare talent or inspiration which may lift it into a position of much high service for its fellows.

For Monday, December 9

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a very enterprising day, with much stirring in both a business and private connection. In fact the latter in a social, domestic and affectional activity is quite likely to relegate the more prosaic interests to the background. There may be surprises in store to stress romantic adventures and to heighten their thrills and enjoyments.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of exciting and perhaps thrilling experiences, with much commotion and pleasant excitement, social domestic and sentimental emotions are due for surprising denouements, with the sterner affairs pushed into the background, although it is a most auspicious time to seek advancement or favors from those in high places.

A child born on this day will be very energetic, enterprising and have fine creative and executive ability, with success promised in any cause it espouses.

Another embarrassing moment is when Mrs. Santa Claus loses her shopping list and suspects that some of her plans for a surprise have been sabotaged.

"The Athenians?" asked Darius. "Who are they?" And then he found out at Marathon. Mussolini didn't get that far.

Fight On Tuberculosis

Childhood Is Best Time To Start It

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

If the modern conception of the nature and class of tuberculosis be correct, the school child is the logical and natural person to start to work on. Tuberculosis begins in childhood. It does not manifest the same symptoms in childhood as in adult life; the symptoms in childhood may be so slight as to be unnoticeable—perhaps no more than underweight and an occasional spell of low fever. Children under favorable environmental conditions get over this early stage. But those underprivileged who have a minimum amount of nourishing food to eat, and stuffy, enclosed living quarters, tend to progress to the adult type of tuberculosis which develops in the lungs and in its final stages is aptly called consumption.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The child who lives in better conditions, with plenty of fresh air, and an adequate diet—adequate as to nourishment, calories, vitamins and minerals—stands a very good chance (the odds are 99 to 1) of overcoming the initial invasion of the disease.

Schools Can Help

If, as I say, these facts are true—and they have been arrived at by long painstaking observation and environment, extra lunches, rest periods on cots, and careful supervision of the nutrition of the child which is the key to successful healing of the tuberculous process. The medical examinations, weighing, and charting of progress, taking temperature and pulse rate at regular intervals, make for a scientific attempt at prevention. These were entirely missed with the haphazard methods of family care practiced forty years ago, when they waited on symptoms to appear before doing anything about it.

The open air classroom provides a deterrent to the advance of tuberculosis in childhood, and undoubtedly prevents the development of the adult type of the disease in many instances. Pupils for open air classes are selected in many ways. Sometimes a school nurse finds that home conditions of a child are not healthy. That they are, in fact, conducive to the development of tuberculosis. So on general principles, she advises the child be put in the open air room. Others are picked up by school physicians, or sent in by family physicians or clinics.

Children Should Be Tested

The ideal thing would be to have all the children of kindergarten age tested with a tuberculin test. The patch test does not require any scratching of the skin, or break in the skin in any way. In the kindergarten age only about 1 percent of the children react positively to the tuberculin test. Further examination is unnecessary because it can be assumed that the positive reactors have some degree of active tuberculosis. At later ages this is not true, because everyone who has had an infection, recovered from it and developed an immunity, will react.

The open air classroom builds up resistance by healthy open air

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. F. W.: "What medicines will cause the trouble known as low count of the white corpuscles?"

Answer: Headache medicines containing amipyrine. Careful inquiries as to whether a headache medicine includes this drug should always be made before using. Drug firms have stopped putting out such preparations but somebody occasionally finds an old bottle of headache medicine in the bathroom cabinet, with bad results.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendenning has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Rev. Keister Talks On God's Word At Bible Observance

Rev. George D. Keister will talk on "God's Word and the Healing of Nations," Sunday in connection with the observance of Universal Bible Sunday at the Holy Trinity English Lutheran church. This will also be the second Sunday in Advent.

Members are asked to bring their Bibles to the service.

Church schedule follows: Sunday school, 9:45. Charles W. Youtz, Supt.

The spirit of brotherhood and neighborliness is not naturally part of human nature. The world at the present time is following the path of hate and destruction, because it represents the philosophy of humanism. Such is the folly of putting so much confidence in what man can do. It leads to selfish struggles. It is God that is the author of the principles of consideration of the other fellow. Being a good neighbor is part of the program of the Kingdom of Christ. World brotherhood can only be realized when the Gospel of Christ will be accepted and followed.

Morning worship, 11. Sermon.

The world is now in a wounded and sickened condition. Many sore spots are to be found. The cries of the distressed and heartbroken are heard from all corners of the globe. It is a very sick world. This is true in spite of the rapid advances in science and learning, which is testimony that civilization does not come with only the training of mind. A better world, only can be attained by the training of the heart with the principles of God and His Kingdom. The Holy Bible is still the world's best offer. This Book of life is still the most read and most studied book of all time. This treasure of Holy Scriptures is still the strongest influence in making people follow the path that is in keeping with the will of God. Nations can be healed by the study and following of these divine teachings.

Renewal of Strength How to keep going in the Christian life does not differ greatly as to method for life and activity in any other sphere. It is by the renewal of strength. The locomotive that stands on the rails at the station, hissing with power for the run to the distant city, renews its strength from time to time by the fireman who feeds the coal into it all along the way. Without this renewal of its strength only a score of miles out and the train would come to a standstill. In our physical life we keep going by renewing our strength. The laborer of the day consumes it. We keep renewing it by the food of which we partake during the day and the sleep of the night. Without this constant renewal, our strength would soon be exhausted and all our activities come to an end. The same holds in the spiritual. There is no perpetual motion in the Christian life. Here, too, there must be the renewal of strength. The source is the Lord. They that wait upon the Lord in prayer, the reading of the Bible, meditation, public worship and other means of grace, "shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; they shall walk and not faint."

Announcements Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock the Luther league will meet. All our young people are urged to attend this meeting and help get the Christmas program ready. Wednesday, 4 p. m. Senior confirmation class. Wednesday, 7:30 p. m. Ladies aid meeting. This is the last meeting in the old year and all members should attend. Thursday, 4 p. m. Junior confirmation class.

Christian Science Announce Program

"God The Only Cause And Creator" is the subject of the lesson sermon which will be read at the morning worship of the Christian Science society tomorrow.

The Sunday service is also broadcast over station WCLE (610 kl.) Cleveland the first and third Sundays of each month at 11 a. m.

Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 20 years is held at 9:30 a. m.

The midweek service will be held the first Wednesday of each month at the church, 8 p. m.

The Golden Text is: "Every house is builded by some man; but he that build all things is God" (Hebrews 3:4).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "I know, that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: nothing can be put to it, nor any thing taken from it; and God doeth it, that men should fear before him" (Ecclesiastes 3:14).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "All reality is in God and His creation, harmonious and eternal. That which He creates is good, and He makes all that is made" (p.472).

This society maintains a reading room at 136 S. Broadway where the Bible and all authorized Christian Science literature may be read or borrowed. The room is open from 1:30 to 4 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, and from 7 to 9 p. m. on Saturday. During the last few years, most of us have learned to economize. We have found that if we want value-received, we must be watchful, considering carefully the reputation of the firm or individual from whom we buy or employ to render a service.

I come in contact with a great many business and professional people, and it is always a pleasure to find one tuned to the times. The Stark Memorial, for instance, gives unsurpassed service, offers only merchandise made by reputable firms — all at fair and honest prices.

"TRIAL WITHOUT JURY"

By JAMES RONALD

CHAPTER ONE

On a sunny August morning a merger which made one large shoe-manufacturing concern out of three small ones was completed to the small minor details. One was the dismissal of a middle-aged cost accountant whose services no longer would be necessary. At least, to the officers of the new company his dismissal was a detail; to Stephen Osborne it came almost with the shock of a death sentence.

At three that afternoon, Osborne came out of the office building in which he had been employed for twenty-four years. He walked slowly along the grey sunless canyon which is Grave street, the main business thoroughfare of Bradbury, a prosperous small city. He had the glassy eye, the blank stare of a punch-drunk pugilist. He walked with an unnatural stiffness, as though mind and body were concentrated on the problem of keeping himself erect.

He didn't look like an office-worker. Perhaps that was because he had never fitted into office routine. He looked like a scholar, a dreamer. Tall and thin, about 50 years of age, he had a rather fine face with a high forehead, an aquiline nose and a sensitive mouth. The dark hair at his temples was sprinkled with silver. He wore a rather old blue suit which had been carefully brushed and pressed and, although his shoes had seen a lot of wear, they shone bravely.

Of their own accord, Stephen's feet led him round the first turning into Rundle Street, through which he passed nightly on his way to the bus station. The Relief Office was in Rundle street and outside it a line of men shuffled and lunged while they waited their turns to apply for aid.

Some of them kept their eyes on the sidewalk, ashamed of this advertisement of their poverty; some stared at those who passed with a boldness that mocked sympathy; some seemed oblivious to everything but the door at the end of the line. One ragged soul with frayed cuffs and patched elbows was engrossed in a racing sheet; another was telling a funny story to his neighbor; a fourth was prodding his nails with a knife. Here a clean collar and polished shoes told of a fight against odds to keep up appearances; and there a scrubby chin, a frayed collar and shoes caked with mud confessed the hopeless apathy of the derelict who owned them. No two faces were alike. Cheerful, callous, anxious, listless, bitter, defiant; each expressed an attitude towards life. Only Hope seemed absent.

Usually Stephen looked the other way when he passed the Relief Office, but this afternoon his eyes traveled along the line, resting on each face in turn. He had a new interest in this out-of-work army, a new horror at its fate—for now he belonged to it.

Stunned and bewildered, he wandered the streets. Block after block of unfriendly pavement he tramped, and while he drifted he took stock of himself. They had given him a check for two months' salary and told him that they could manage without him immediately if he wanted to be free to look for another job. That stung. It stung mostly because it was true. For twenty-four years he had served the firm to the best of his ability and it could manage without him at a moment's notice. A certain amount of slack to take up; that was all the difference his going would make.

A poor recommendation to offer another employer. If others with better qualifications than his could search for work year after year in vain, what hope was there for him? He had little initiative and no confidence in meeting and talking to strangers. He did not know how to go about looking for work. He had only had one job in his life, the one he had just lost; and it had been obtained for him through the influence of one of his father's old friends.

"One day you'll come crawling back to me, begging for help," Octavia had said twenty-four years ago.

His qualifications were few. A common school education, four years of college, three years of idling in New York, with a few trips to Europe; and then twenty-four years of clerical drudgery....

Drudgery? Yes, that was what it had been; and he had hated every minute of it, although he had tried not to let Edith know. It would have hurt her to realize how bitterly he loathed the office to which he had been condemned when he married.

Edith.... How was he to tell her? And—good heavens!—how were they to live? They had never been able to save. How could they, with five children to feed, clothe, educate? They had less than three hundred dollars in the bank; and the check for two months' salary, another six hundred dollars. That would not last long. When it was gone—what?

Stephen ground his teeth. He would find another job. He must. But even as he swore it he realized that if he did find one he could not hope for anything like his former salary of three hundred dollars a month. Even that had been barely sufficient for his family's needs. A smaller salary would mean that his boy, Michael, would have to go to work at once and his daughters, Dorothy and Ann, as well. Perhaps he had no right to have other plans for them, to want to see his eldest son a doctor, to rebel at the thought of his daughters working in offices. Probably they should have been given an early start in the lifelong business of earning a living, like the children of most men whose finances were similar to his own. But the only sweetening in the bitter cup of is twenty-four years of drudgery had been the aspiration to better things for his children.

And at the back of his mind there had been the thought of half-sister Octavia's money, not for himself, but for them. In the end it must come to them! There was no one else to whom she could leave it.

Thinking of this sister, Stephen frowned. "One day you'll come crawling back to me, begging for help...." Octavia had said that, twenty-four years ago. And now he was about to prove her right. He would have to go to her and ask her to help him. Almost he would rather die than do it.

But life is not as easy at that. You don't die. You go on living. And to live you must have money, for the immediate concerns of life are not love, hate, pride, passion; but rent, taxes, food and clothing.

And after all, the quarrel with Octavia was a thing of twenty-four years ago. They had been on fairly friendly terms with her for twenty years and she visited them, every summer. True, she had never done anything for them, but Stephen had never asked her—and she liked to be asked. Even when his finances were at their lowest ebb, Stephen had not approached her. To have done so would have been disloyal to Edith who had been the innocent cause of that ancient quarrel.

Now it was different. This was not financial stringency but dire necessity. It would not be easy to approach her (and Octavia would not make it easier) but it would have to be done. And when he had to pay for being a failure and the father of a family, she was very rich. It would mean nothing to her to let him have enough to tide them over for a few months.

Her annual visit was due in a week. Stephen would talk to her then. In the meantime, he would try not to let Edith know that he had lost his job. It would only worry her. He would come to Bradbury every day as usual and only break the news to Edith when he had Octavia's promise to help them.

Nazi World Plans Revealed

Here is Dr. Walther Darro, German minister of food and agriculture who made that amazing speech to high German officials in May, 1940, as disclosed by Life magazine. Among other things, the reported talk disclosed that "we shall destroy France, as this wretched nation deserves no other fate . . . after the complete defeat and humiliation of the western continental powers, it will be an easy thing to crush contemptible England . . . all soil and industrial property of inhabitants of non-German origin will be confiscated without exception and distributed primarily among worthy members of the party and soldiers . . . thus, a new aristocracy of German masters will be created . . . this aristocracy will have slaves assigned to it, these slaves to be their property . . . I have been asked about my opinion of America, especially the United States, and the danger of this pseudo-democratic republic's possible attempts to hinder us . . . there is no fear that this demoralized country will mix in this German war . . . the United States also will be forced by Germany to complete and final capitulation."

Fresh Flowers Worn in New Ways Add Glamor

Whether your holiday big moment is a date with a devoted swain or a party where you hope to meet a new beau, you can depend upon fresh flowers to give you that extra plus of glamor. This year you'll see all your favorite posies blooming on pompadours, chignons, earrings, bracelets and necklaces. A corsage of gardenias is worn in the curls of the model on the left above, and a matching bouquet is pinned to her evening bag. The model, center, is wearing the new epaulet arrangement of red carnations and white holly on the shoulders of her wool dinner suit, with a matching bouquet in her hair. With the evening dress, right, is worn a headdress of rubrum lilies, orchids or gardenias, with a matching bracelet corsage. Choose flowers to complement the drama of your dress, and when you wear them in your hair, study your face with an artistic eye. Pinned high on the pompadour they slim a round face; a slanting arrangement becomes a thin face; and a chignon decoration flattens a too sharp profile.

By HERB BARKER, Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Boasting the greatest concentration of football talent in its history, the Middle West dominates the 16th annual All-American team, selected today by The Associated Press on the basis of a nationwide survey of expert opinion.

Led by the powerful Western Conference where Minnesota, Michigan and Northwestern set a rapid pace, the Mid-West places three men on the first team and ten men, all told on the All-America squad of 33, divided among first, second and third teams.

Trailing the Midlands are the South and East, with seven players each on the full squad; the Southwest; and Far West with four each, and the Rocky Mountain sector with one.

Completing another season of spectacular play, four members of the 1939 All-America ensemble are selected again—Tom Harmon, Michigan's sensational halfback; John Kimbrough, smashing fullback of the Texas Aggies; Nick Drabos, Cornell's great tackle, and Paul Severin, North Carolina end.

Serving with Kimbrough and Harmon in the backfield are Frank Albert, Stanford's clever field general, and George Frank, speedy halfback of Minnesota's undefeated juggernaut.

Filling out the line positions are Erwin (Buddy) Elrod of Mississippi State as Severin's running mate at end; Bob Reinhard of California, serving with Drabos at tackle; Bob Suffridge of Tennessee and Warren Alison of Nebraska at the guard posts, and Chet Gladchuk, huge Boston College star, at center.

Nine Are Seniors

Of these, all except Albert and Reinhard are seniors, furnishing a sharp contrast to the situation a year ago when six juniors won places on the All-America. Albert and Reinhard are juniors.

Selection of Elrod and Gladchuk give Mississippi State and Boston College All-America representation for the first time since The Associated Press began its selections in 1925. Stanford returns to the All-America picture for the first time since 1935 when Bobby Grayson was chosen; Nebraska and Minnesota for the first time since 1936 when Sam Francis and Ed Widewald made the grade, and California for the first time since Sam Chapman was selected in 1937.

As chosen, the All-America team has all the necessary qualifications of speed, skill, brains and durability. The line, anchored by the 242-pound Gladchuk, averages 202 pounds. Kimbrough's 222 pounds brings the backfield average up to 190.

Whatever arguments may develop elsewhere, there could be no dispute over the right of both Harmon and Kimbrough to rank with football's all-time greats. Both were marked men from the start; ingenious defenses were designed to stop their marauding forays, but with small success.

Christmas Season Relief Increased; $1,443 Gift Added

LISBON, Dec. 7 — Columbiana county commissioners on Friday approved an allocation of $7,215 for relief purposes in December, the amount including $1,443 in excess of the usual appropriation in order that relief families might have a little additional during the Christmas season.

The relief load decreased for December from 532 cases representing 1521 persons in November, to 512 cases of 1443 persons, the same being attributable to the return of many to private industry, according to Relief Director John W. Orr. Relief alone during November cost the county $5,937.47, while the administration of the various phases of relief, including direct relief, the surplus commodities, WPA certification, and pre-audit, as well as the sewing and house-keeping aid projects, amounted to $2,126.50, making a total relief cost to the county of $8,063.97.

The allocations for December to the townships comprising the county relief area, are: Butler, $120; Center, $760; Elkrun, $285; Fairfield, $315; Franklin, $145; Hanover, $225; Knox, $100; Liver- pool, $870; Madison, $530; Middle- ton, $455; Perry, $45; Salem, $405; St. Clair, $1,175; Unity, $500; Washington, $650; Wayne, $150; West, $65, and Yellow Creek, $420.

HISTORY SHOWS FAMOUS DIGITS

Includes 16 to 1; 54-40 or Fight, and Now — No. 158

PITTSBURGH — Number 158, which will long be remembered by America's selective service registrants, is only the latest in a long series of numbers that have played important roles in the history of the United States, a history professor at the University of Pittsburgh recalls.

Dr. Russell J. Ferguson points out that during the progress of American history, numbers representing some event of significance have acquired singular meaning and connotations which have been of great importance to historians.

Beginning with 158, first capsule to be drawn in America's first peace-time draft lottery, and its remarkably similar predecessor, 258, first number picked in the 1917 wartime lottery, the history teacher cites several other instances of the importance certain combinations of digits have assumed.

"329" Against Garfield
Election campaigns often have hinged on some significant number, he said. He mentioned 329 as an example—a number used during the presidential campaign of James A. Garfield in 1880.

Opponents of Garfield had accused him of profiting by the sum of $329 in allegedly irregular bond dealings during the "Credit Mobilier" scandals. They chalked and painted the number on sidewalks, buildings and fences and repeated it throughout the campaign.

Another famous campaign number "combination" was "16 to 1," representing the ratio of coinage of silver and gold advocated by William Jennings Bryan in his unsuccessful race against William McKinley in 1896.

"Stalwart 13" Cited
Among other famous political slogans, Dr. Ferguson mentioned the "stalwart 13"—the name of a group of die-hard Federalists who tried to block the unanimous election of Thomas Jefferson in 1800; and the "10-cent Jimmy" tag placed on James Buchanan by his opponents.

Patriotic slogans also have employed numbers, he said. One of the most famous was the "54-40 or fight!" battle cry used to bolster the American side of the Oregon boundary dispute with England in the early half of the 19th century. Equally as widely known are: "The Spirit of '76," "Millions for Defense but Not One Cent for Tribute," "40 Acres and a Mule," "The 49ers," the "Four-fifths Compromise" and Woodrow Wilson's "14 points."

More recently, Dr. Ferguson said, "we have added such catch-phrases as 'The Nine Old Men' of the Supreme court and 'fifth column' activities.

"The roads of the township are said to be in bad condition but that there are no funds with which to carry on the work. As there is money in the bond retirement and general funds, not needed for those purposes, the petition seeking the transfer was filed.

Major Guy G. Mills Tells About Selective Service Deferment

The national health, safety and interest should be disrupted as little as possible, consistent with the fundamental purpose of the selective training and service act."

The speaker appealed for the cooperation of employers in defining the "necessary man" and to report facts from time to time that the board should know.

"Employers who desire to claim occupational deferment for any employee may do so," he continued and explained that "a deferment shall not be for a period longer than six months. However, such deferments shall be renewed for further periods of not to exceed six months, unless the local board determines that the registrant should be reclassified."

Major Mills reminded the employers that the primary object of selective service is to provide a reservoir of trained men for the military defense of the United States and that deferments to Class II should, therefore, be requested in all cases of specific necessity.

When a man has been deferred to Class II because he is "necessary" in his present occupation, any future change in his occupational status must be reported to his local board in order that he may be immediately reclassified," the major said.

Ask Fund Transfer For Road Repairs

LISBON, Dec. 7. — The trustees of Middleton township Friday filed a petition in common pleas court seeking permission to transfer $250 in the bond retirement fund and $2,300 in the general fund of the township, to the road and bridge fund.

The roads of the township are said to be in bad condition but that there are no funds with which to carry on the work. As there is money in the bond retirement and general funds, not needed for those purposes, the petition seeking the transfer was filed.
